The sale of the O. V. railway under a decree of the United States Circuit Court in favor of the Central Trust Company, of New York, was to have taken place Tuesday, but Judge Barr issued an order postponing the sale until July 6. The railway company desired that it be postponed until January 1, but as the plaintiff objected the date mentioned was selected.

Good Sales This Week.

The grades of tobacco on the board this week were about the same as during the past week. The demand for the better grades was stronger, while prices on the common sorts remain the same as last week's quotations. The sales this week were one day later than usual and we were unable to obtain the number of hogsheads disposed of. Receipts for the week were 715 bbls.

The young man fell against a wire fence and both legs were horribly cut. The flesh on his body was also cut and torn in many places. It was at first thought that he had been fatally injured, but the chances are now favorably for his recovery. Edwin Smith, son of Mr. John J. Smith, was thrown from his horse and sustained painful injuries. The animal ran off and threw its rider against a wire fence. Both legs were badly cut and he was otherwise seriously hurt.

BETHEL FEMALE COLLEGE.

Graduating Exercises Wednesday Evening in the College Chapel.

The commencement exercises of Bethel Female College began Monday evening with a pupils' recital, consisting of vocal and instrumental music and recitations and closed Wednesday evening with the exercises attending the presentation of diplomas to the graduates.

All of the services of the commencement were held in the college chapel except those of Tuesday evening, when Rev. Carter Helm Jones of Louisville, delivered the Baccalaureate address. These took place at the Baptist church and, consisted of an interesting musical program, and Dr. Jones' address, his subject being "Culture." One of the largest and most cultivated audiences ever assembled in this city greeted the speaker and showed by their close attention the interest taken in the exercises.

Wednesday evening the regular graduating exercises took place, when the college chapel was filled to overflowing with citizens and visitors.

The interesting event of the evening was the presentation of diplomas to a graduating class of six young ladies, who go out into life dowered with an education such as only a thorough institution like Bethel College can confer. The class of '97 is composed of Miss Josephine Hatcher, A. B., of Trenton, Ky.

Miss Sarah Elizabeth Jackson, B. S., of Keokuk, Ky.

Miss Eula Margarita Lam, B. S., of Greenville, Ky.

Miss Georgia E. Mitchell, B. S., of Houston, Texas.

Miss Susie Evelyn White, B. S., of Cadiz, Ky.

Miss Evelina Louise Nash, A. B., of this city.

Rev. Edmund Harrison, President of the college, representing the young graduates with their diplomas, addressed them in a strain suited to the occasion, as they step out into the broad battle-field of life.

The reception rooms and parlors of the college were handsomely decorated with beautiful works of art, that attested to the thorough manner in which the pupils had been trained in all the higher branches of education.

Under the management of Dr. Harrison Bethel Female College has attained to an enviable position among the educational institutions, not only of Kentucky, but of the South. The past session has been a most successful one in every respect and every effort will be made to attain even greater excellence in the future.

THE ROPE ROUTE.

Body of Crofton Farmer Found Hanging From a Tree Pole.

J. W. Armstrong, a well known farmer of the Crofton neighborhood, committed suicide Tuesday afternoon by hanging. He was last seen alive when he left his house about noon Tuesday. As he failed to return for supper a search was instituted, and about six o'clock one of his daughters found his lifeless body hanging from a tree pole in his barn. Coroner Alenworth was summoned and held an inquest at midnight. Mr. W. S. Long, of Mr. Armstrong's neighbors, testified as follows: "I saw him last night at my house and he was talking about being in trouble, and about his financial affairs and hard times. He had a good deal of sickness in his family and had been sick himself. He seemed to be much worried." Other witnesses corroborated the statement by Mr. Long and the following verdict was rendered: "We, the jury, summoned by the coroner to look into the cause of the death of J. W. Armstrong, found hanging in a barn near Crofton, June 1, '97, find from the evidence that he came to his death at his own hands by hanging."

Everett Foster, Foreman, James Pollard, Mark Gilky, Add Robinson, John Wilson, Edmund Long.

He hung himself with a cotton rope, tying one end of the cord around a tree pole of the third tier in the barn, fastening it to the ground, and the other around his neck. The body was about four feet from the ground and he must have fallen about eight feet.

Mr. Armstrong was about 40 years old and in moderate circumstances. He leaves a wife and eight children. The interment took place Wednesday afternoon at the family burying ground.

THE CONVENTION.

CHICAGO PLATFORM ENDORSED AND IS THOROUGHLY DEMOCRATIC.

Fall of Old Time Enthusiasm and Red Hot For Free Silver.

Frankfort, June 2.—The delegates were slow in arriving at the Democratic convention to nominate a candidate for the clerk of the Court of Appeals but at 11:30 the halls were packed and after a wait of 15 minutes Chairman Johnson called the convention to order. After prayer the band played "Dixie" and a large portrait of Bryan, which hung from view behind the scenes, was suddenly dropped. It was the signal for prolonged applause from the delegates. Chairman Johnson started to read his address, but his voice was not sufficient and at his own request and that of the convention, it was read by James E. Stone.

The reading of the address was frequently interrupted by applause, and at its conclusion the cheering was vociferous.

Senator William Goebel, of Kentucky, was chosen Temporary Chairman by acclamation.

The new Chairman was heartily cheered when he assumed the gavel. He first thanked the convention and said to judge by the convention today the Democratic party was never better organized, and that the harmony and enthusiasm that prevailed to-day presaged the victory to follow in November.

"I believe," said Mr. Goebel, "that this convention will declare for the Chicago platform, and that it will also declare for independent bimetalism. The Republican party has secured many thousands of votes under the delusion to the voters that there should be independent American bimetalism."

Mr. Goebel paid his respects to the administration of Gov. Bradley, enumerating unfulfilled promises, and charging great extravagance. He said that in pressing his would always bear in mind the difference between a Democratic convention and a Republican Legislature. Mr. James E. Stone was unanimously elected Temporary Secretary, with the Democratic press as assistants.

The various committees were then announced.

In the district convention, where the State Central and State Executive Committees were voted on, all the old members were re-elected, except in the Sixth and Fifth districts. In the former Joseph W. Fugh, of Kentucky, was named to succeed John T. Hodge, of Campbell, and John L. Dunlap was recommended by the new committee delegates of the fifth district to succeed Mr. W. O. Head.

Urey Woodson moved that the chairman name the two members for each committee from the State at large. Carried. Chairman Goebel then announced the following committees from the State at large:

Resolutions—John B. Thompson, of Mercer, and Ollie James, of Crittenden.

Organization—Chas. M. Meacham, of Christian, and James Gillespie, of Nicholas.

Credentials—James D. Richardson, of Barren, and Charles W. Metcalfe, of Bell.

The convention then adjourned until 2:30 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

When the hour of reassembling, 2:30 o'clock, arrived the delegates soon filled the opera house. There were calls for Blackburn and when fifteen minutes later the Senator appeared at the chairman's desk with Chairman Goebel there was prolonged cheering. "He needs no introduction," said Goebel, and then Senator Joss began one of his characteristic speeches, with a show of indignation never noticed before. He devoted his remarks to the Chicago platform and particularly the financial plank, saying it was unnecessary to await the report of the Committee on Resolutions for that he said was already known.

He said the Republican party of Kentucky had increased the burden of taxation. In closing he counseled conservatism and courage. He said that the gates should be left wide open for the return of every kind and mislead Joseph V. Tift, said he, "there are those leaders who were not misled, who not only deserted but induced others to desert."

Senator Branton also addressed the convention. He was followed by Editor B. A. Enloe, of the Louisville Dispatch. Most of the afternoon was consumed in speaking making.

On the resuming of the convention at 8 o'clock to-night nominations were declared in order.

After the usual speech-making the chairman announced that there were

BEYOND THE MIST.

"It's but the old and oft-repeated story—
 The boat sped onward 'neath the morning sun, where, in verdant, purple-misted glades, The distant tale of life awaited thee."
 "Might gladioli stand there with eager vision."
 "What matter if sad voices sighed: 'A dream!'"
 "Sweet, were the odors from those fields Elysian."
 "And soft the music from the murmuring stream."
 "Grieve not because by cruel winds up-roused,
 And arbutun currents driven, swift the bark."
 "With rushing keel sped by that harbor dark."
 "And fades thine island in the distance
 dark."
 "What of thy goodly castle's weak foundation."
 "If truly of the king thou art a help-mer—
 Embowering, by royal tales of salvation, Mortals more subtle and more fair."
 "Know that the mist which blankly looks before thee
 Hides joys more sweet, more real; upon that spotless page
 Draw cheerful fancies of the waiting shore beyond it."
 "Hence the hopes of childhood in the faith of age."

A GAME OF POKER.

"A man who sits into a game of poker in a region that is new to him without first finding out the rules of the game as it is played in that region is liable to stick up against worse trouble than did the British buccaneer who clumped into a Mohammedan joes-house with his boots and spurs on," said an old Forty-niner as he plunked shut diener door of the Fotomac the other day. "For there's a heap of different kinds of poker played in this country; and the worst of it is that the man who plays the kind of a game he was raised on is always blind to the beauties of the entirely different game that he drifts into when he gets away from his own neck of the woods. Poker is a good deal like Injun talk. I can talk pretty fair Modoc Injun; but I guess if I'd talk Modoc to a had Sioux or to an impetuous Ogallala Sioux he'd begin to figure on how my hair would do for tepee-lining. And there's more mixed brands of draw poker played around the United States and territories than there are Injun dialects."

"I once saw a game of poker that resulted pretty seriously for both players on account of the lack of an understanding between them before the game started as to just what the hands were worth. It was in Vallejo, back in '77. Vallejo was then the hottest town in Napa county, on account of the immense expectations all hands had of the riches they were going to make out of their grape ranches, which about this time became thicker in Napa than the ferns in Connecticut. Every man who owned a grape ranch figured on buying a yacht and going around the Horn to New York in it inside of a few years, and they were all so confident of eventual wealth that they recklessly blew in their money when the grape boom was at its height; they thought that in a few years the California wine-making business would pan out so big that they could afford to have a little fun with the few thousands of dollars in ready coin that most of them had on hand after getting their vines in the ground. They had their fun all right, but the fancy-card men from San Francisco got the bulk of their cash. San Francisco is only 30 odd miles from Vallejo, and the San Francisco gamblers and dealers and ruffians heard of the light-hearted skittishness, not to say dampishness, of the Napa grape ranchers, they flocked into Vallejo, and for a couple of years made it into a good imitation of Angelo's. Game of the phylloxera and black rot dashed the hopes of the sanguine viticultur-ists and cleaned them out altogether."

"But this game of mixed poker I was going to tell you about: I was in Lou Prindley's big Vallejo farm mill one Sunday afternoon—for the game was as wide open on Sundays as it was on week days—trying to pump a little sense into the fool head of a friend of mine who had chubbied away nearly every dollar he had in the world at Vallejo's brace games, when one of the look-outs who knew of the interest I took in watching a good game of poker, although I never played the game except with friends, came over to where I was standing and said:

"Let's go to a good game of draw on with a new man upstairs; go up and take it in."

"Now, in those days Lou Prindley
 —he was shot in Arizona 15 years ago—was just about the warmest poker player on the Pacific coast.
 He ran faro games in most of the big towns in California for the money there was in it, but he played draw poker for the fun of the thing; and he always played on the level, for he wasn't a man who cared to mix business with pleasure, and he wouldn't have found any entertainment in stacking the cards and dealing from the bottom and middle in any game that he got into just to enjoy the study of percentages."

"When I went upstairs to the poker room Prindley was sitting in his shirt leaves opposite a solid-looking man of 40 or thereabouts, dressed in the uniform of a steamship officer.

 When I was told that he was the chief engineer of one of the big Panama boats I didn't have much trouble in figuring out where he held the big sack of gold coin he had with him; for in those days, you know, the chief engineers of the west coast ships used to have charge of the coaling of their vessels, and they considered it quite legitimate to make a take-off of several thousand dollars every time they coaled, for coal cost from $20 to $30 a ton, and the chief engineers had the making of the report of their bunker space and entered into the arrangements with the ship coalers on the Mexican coast.
 It was the custom of the day for the engineers to feather their nests in this way, and everybody appeared to think nothing of it.

"This chief engineer had just been transferred from the east to the west coast, which accounts for his ignorance of the California game of poker.
 When I turned up I found out that he had been jabbing Prindley pretty hard since the beginning of the game; but the two different brands of draw poker played by the two men had not yet come into conflict. You see, they don't play straights on the slope; and the sloper who has not traveled or played poker with eastern men doesn't know what the word 'straight' means as applied to the game of draw.
 Prindley, of course, knew all about straights, but he never played 'em with anybody, and I think he had a right to assume that any man who played draw with him in his own territory ought to know the rules of the game in that territory."

"There was a big jackpot in the center of the table when I went upstairs to witness the game. It had been sweetened probably half a dozen times, and already contained something close on to $1,000 in double eagles. But neither man seemed to be able to catch on. It went around 11 times altogether, and every time it passed both men sugared it for half a hundred. The chief engineer dealt the twelfth mess. Prindley was one of those cool chaps who picked up his cards one by one, and when he had picked up his first two cards on this deal he calmly jolted $200 in gold into the pot, remarking:
 "It's open before looking at the other."

"This hand of mine is worth $500 more," said the chief engineer, who was a pretty self-contained chap himself, shoving the yellow stuff into the pot.

"Then you want to play it for keeps," said Prindley, discarding two of his cards.

"The chief engineer took one card himself. He picked it up, looked at it for a second or two, and then carefully closed the hand up like a fan and laid it on the table in front of him."

"Then your bluffing," said he to Prindley.

"How about $1,000 worth?" inquired Prindley, flicking that many eagles from his stack into the pot.

"Thousand more'n you," said the engineer.

"And another," murmured Prindley when he drew cards, and when I saw him catch a pair of nines to his three kings I figured that it was all over, especially as the other fellow had drawn one card, which looked like a case of bluffing or two pairs.
 But the way the sailor man kept hitting back at Prindley finally got me to guessing, and by the time he had scooped out nearly all of the coin from his sack I had almost begun to wonder if he had caught pat fours.
 When the $1,000 was laid down and fourth several times, and there was nearly $9,000 in the pot, the chief engineer, cool as a mountain trout in a shady hole, emptied out his coin sack, and found that he had little more than $1,000 left. He shoved his $1,000 to the center of the table.

"Call you," said he.

"Prindley spread out his king full."

"No good," said the chief engineer, spreading out a seven-high straight flush of diamonds, and reaching for the pot.

"Hu? What's no good? Hands off that pot! What the devil do you mean? Since when did a flush beat a full house?"

"A flush don't, but this thing of mine is a straight flush, which beats an ace of fours; take your flippers off that coin."

"Straight flush be hanged!—not on this side of the Sierras!" yelled Prindley, jumping to his feet.

"The words were hardly out of his mouth before the engineer, who was a big, powerful fellow, with a fair by the throat. Then he did a cruel thing. Holding the gambler's throat in a vice-like clutch with his left hand, he deliberately poked his strong horny right forefinger with all his strength into Prindley's right eye,
 by the throat. Then he did a cruel enamored has Mr. Veech become of his financial views that he advertised in the Courier Journal what he was pleased to call 'gold standard' sale held and Mr. Veech succeeded in selling about fifteen head at an average price of $105, hardly enough

The Palace Of All Nations.

The Tennessee Exposition is attracting large crowds each day and nearly every department is now open.
 The Palace of All Nations has been officially opened and every exhibit has been placed in position. This place will require much time from the intelligent visitor who delights in the inspection of the beautiful in art.
 On entering the rotunda of the Commerce Building one is immediately impressed, and perceives triumphal arches which lead into the Palace of All Nations.

It is a large hall covering an area of 40,000 square feet. The eye at once detects the difference in the decoration here, and those in the Commerce Building. Flags of all nations hang from the roof, draped in such artistic and graceful manner as to greatly and seemingly enlarge the building. The wall is covered with large panels, wherein the names of the different countries are presented in gold lettering. Great Britain, Italy, Sweden, Norway, Spain, Russia, France, Germany, Denmark, Austria, Hungary, Belgium, Canada, China, Japan, and many others are seen in succession, and familiar scenes are duplicated to the foreign traveler from each of those countries which transports him to them again. The columns which support the roof of the building are covered with maroon material, having as a crown to each summit a shield representing the country whose exhibits are below.

The wall space is covered with beautiful oil paintings from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company of Canada, splendid engravings from the London & Northwestern Railway of England and artistic French tapestries, admirable imitations of the famous gobelins and many other interesting pictures. The happy-blending of harmonious colors greets the eye from every position, no partition having been allowed in the entire avenue, so that the vision is unbroken, full and complete.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years it was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proved catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment.
 Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoon-and mucous surfaces of the system.

at a high value, but each believed it was against nature that Sairey Motte should die an old maid.

And it became the habit of every one to run for Sairey if they were in trouble. If any difficulty arose in their uneventful life, they would say, "Let's hear what Sairey says." And she would give them a sort of friend-of-all-work to the whole village, and she accepted her mission with all the love of her heart, and so killing a cheerfulness, that, as the neighbors said, it "put fresh life into a body. And to the sick her care was worth a power of doctors. And so, when she died, she had no end of friends. Her heart's desire long after she had ceased to think of it, save in the way we think of something very beautiful or rare that can never be ours, a possession we have ceased to covet because it seemed to be altogether out of our reach.

BY BRADSHAW ISHERWOOD

"P'raps men are different," Sairey would say to herself, "and can shift their fancies. Steadied down a bit!—thank the Lord for that! I reckon he'll make a tidy husband. But I wish I felt a bit softer towards Tom's fancy; it's terrible hard not to grudge her, like, and Tom steadied down."

So Sairey lived in her little white house at the end of the road, and though there had been many an honest man who had fancied to win her for his wife, they all at length gave it up; it was useless, and perhaps, like Tom, they considered she held herself

At a meeting of the Cardiff town council a letter was read from the marquis of Bute offering to place in the hands of the council the sum of £1,000, the yearly income of which should be given to some girl or girls of the poorer classes of Cardiff whose marriage might be impeded by want of such a sum. The gift is to commemorate his lordship's silver wedding. But the mayor is giving the dowry the mayor shall remind the bride and bridegroom of the origin of the foundation, and read to them the first 11 verses of the second chapter of St. John.

Starrvation and neglect are the great causes of unfruitfulness with many unprofitable orchards.

Seems as if consumption always picks out the brightest and best. Fully one sixth of all the deaths that occur in the world are caused by consumption. Many things were once considered impossible. HE TRIED TO "SHOW OFF."

And as a Result the Engagement Has Been Broken.

"Did you notice the way in which Angus Macdonald and Kitty Chestnut acted last night?" asked the first girl, eagerly. "I fancied there was a slight difference between them."

"Coldness!" exclaimed the second girl, laughing. "Coldness! I should think there was; the north pole was nothing to it. How did it happen? Oh, I'll tell you. Kitty told me in confidence yesterday, and I've been just dying to tell somebody else; it's such a good joke."

"You heard about the trip they were to take to the West, didn't you? Well, everybody thought that meant it was all settled, seeing that they were going to call upon his sister. I know Kitty intended it that way, and if they'd only gone on the street cars it would have been lovely. But you see, Angus rides well, and he's very proud of it, so he would insist upon going on their wheels, and while they were crossing town he couldn't resist the inclination to show off, and make Kitty scream. She can scream real cute, you know, and she can play afraid better than any girl I know."

"So just as they got to Washington and La Salle streets—Angus would take the busiest way because he wanted to show off so badly—they saw a waiter from one of the restaurants crossing the street ahead of them with a big tray of dishes on his arm."

"Just see me scare him white," said Angus, and, of course, Kitty screamed and begged him not to do so. So he rode around that man twice, just as the poor fellow got in the middle of the street, and it was lots of fun. But on the final round, when a big dry drove right over poor Angus, and knocked him right into that darky with the tray, and Kitty was so scared that she just fell off in the mud and screamed—real honest yells, not cute little shrieks, you know."

"Angus picked himself up and told her to behave and not act like a Comanche Indian, and that made her mad, and so she laughed at him and he looked, all muddy like that and covered with coffee and sandwiches and custard pie and things. Then he got mad and told her she was a sight herself, and they quarreled right then and there. And since then they won't speak only when they just have to. And the engagement's all off, as a matter of course."

"I should think so," said the first girl, amusedly, and they went off on their way, and Angus and Kitty were there that he hadn't known better than to quarrel over such a little thing.—Chicago Times-Herald.

HIS FIRST TRIAL

A Little Too Soon for the Cemetery Lot Question.

He had just returned from the honeymoon trip, and, all aglow with happiness, had settled down to business.

There was a knock at the door. "Some friend," he murmured, "who has come to congratulate me. Come in!" he shouted, joyously.

A tall, dark stranger entered. "Good morning," he said. "I learned that you had just returned from your bridal trip?"

"Just got back," replied the happy fellow, rubbing his hands in glee. "What can I do for you?"

"I called," explained the tall man, "to tell you a lot in the cemetery—some of the best bargains you ever heard of, a lot 30 by—"

"The devil!" cried the newly-married. "What do I want with a cemetery lot? Get out of here!"

"O, well," muttered the stranger, backing to the door, "if you and your family are going to live for ever, or if you want the county to bury you, it's all right. I've nothing more to say. Good morning."

The door went "slam" and the poor newly-married fellow swore forcibly. And then he sat down and dispatched a long, loving note to his wife and asked her if she was feeling quite well, and then locked his door and became thoroughly miserable.—Atlanta Constitution.

Her Escape.

She—Our house was burned last night.

Her Friend—Gracious! Did you have a narrow escape?

She—Narrow? Well, I should say! Why, I didn't have time to find my silk and lace nightgown, and had to come out in a street dress.—Detroit Journal.

Certainly the Case.

"No," said the contortionist; "we have never exactly allied ourselves with either the dramatic or athletic professions. In fact, all of our success may be said to be due to our occupying peculiar positions of our own."—Indianapolis Journal.

Liberal.

"And are the divorce laws so very liberal in your section?"

"Liberal? Say! They are so liberal that nobody ever heard of a woman crying at a wedding out there."—Detroit Journal.

After the orchard is in bearing it does not pay to continue to crop it.

Mr. James Perdue, an old soldier residing at Monroe, Mich., was severely afflicted with rheumatism but received prompt relief from pain by using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says: "At times my back would ache so badly that I could hardly raise up. If I had not gotten relief I would not be here to write these few lines. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done me a great deal of good and I feel very thankful for it." For sale by R. C. Hardwick Druggist.

Strawberries if well mulched, are less affected by change of weather.

Mothers will find Chamberlain's Cough remedy especially valuable for croup and whooping cough. It will give prompt relief and is safe for children. It has been used for several years and it has never failed to give the most perfect satisfaction. G. W. Richardson, Duquesne, Pa. Sold by R. C. Hardwick, druggist.

If done early, spring is the best time to set out trees and plants.

Don't neglect chills. Chills bring on congestion—congestion brings on death. You can cure chills and be stout and healthy by using Dr. Bell's Peppermint Chili Tonic.

Savdust is good mulch for all kinds of small fruits.

For Infants and Children. It is a very reliable medicine.

A MATCH-MAKING PAPA.

How He Married Off All of His Twelve Daughters.

It is supposed to be the exclusive prerogative of a mother to scheme and devise ways and means for the successful marriage of the daughters. Especially is this so where there is a family of all girls, for the chances seem to be less favorable in such instances, and the mother's mamma is always on the lookout for eligible young men whom she can invite to visit the home. I know, however, of a most striking exception in which paterfamilias was the presiding genius over this most momentous bit of business. This man was Ephraim Watson, a typical eastern farmer.

He had 12 daughters and they were all married well, as he claimed through his skillful handling of the delicate subject.

When taxed about his remarkable success, he did not seem to think it an extraordinary achievement but explained it in this way:

"Oh, that's simple enough. I marry my girls off on the Eve-and-the-apple principle."

"What in the name of fortune do you mean?"

"Well, I used to raise a good deal of wheat, and it puzzled me to know how to get rid of the straw. Nothing would eat it, and it was a great bother to me."

"At last I thought of a plan. I stacked my wheat straw nicely, and laid a high fence round it. My cat concluded that it was something good, and at once tore down the fence and began to eat the straw."

"A wicked old donkey set the example, a fellow who always led the way in all mischief. So I drove them away, and put up the fence a few times, but the more I drove them away the more anxious they became to eat the straw. After this had been repeated a few times, the cattle determined to eat the straw, and eat it they did, every bit of it."

"As I said, I marry my girls off on the same principle. When a young man that I don't like begins calling on my girls, I encourage him in every way I can. I tell him to come often and stay as late as he pleases, and I take pains to hint to the girls that I think they had better set their caps for him, and the more I do this, the more they like him. I don't make many calls, for the girls treat him as coolly as they can. But when a young fellow that I like comes—a man that I think would suit me as a son-in-law—I don't let him make many calls before I give him to understand that I want him to marry my house. I tell the girls, too, that they shall not have anything to do with him, and order them never to speak to him again."

"The plan always works admirably. The young folks begin to pity each other, and finally I know they are engaged to be married."

"When I see that they are determined to marry, I always give in, and pretend to make the best of it. That's the way I manage it."

"Humph!" said the neighbor. "Well, the ways of women are wonderful, and for obstinacy they beat everything."

"Of course they do," said Watson. "Do you think that Eve would have touched the apple if it had not been forbidden? Not she."

"I believe you're right," said the neighbor. "What principle, though, I'll fence all my girls to-morrow."

He did; and in 12 months two were married and two engaged, and before the second year had passed all were settled.—N. Y. Weekly.

FAMOUS SALUTES.

Napoleon III. Kissed Victoria—Patti and Little Alphonso.

Some historic interest attaches to the famous salute offered in continental fashion to Queen Victoria, when she went to France, after the Crimean war, and Napoleon III. kissed her on the cheek.

When Adelina Patti had the honor of singing before the queen regent of Spain, the singer asked permission to see the little king, as he was the only sovereign in Europe with whom she was not personally acquainted. Alfonso XIII. was brought into the room in his nurse's arms. Patti made a deep courtesy to him and pressed his little dimpled hand to her lips. But the queen interposed, saying:

"My son shall not be the first Spaniard who is so ungallant as to permit a lady to kiss his hand. Allow him to avege himself with a kiss." Obeyingly Alfonso threw his fat little arms around the neck of the prima donna and bestowed upon her a most warm and unkingly kiss.—N. Y. Telegram.

Something Wrong.

"That last meal," groaned the king of the Cannibal Islands, "has doubled me up completely."

"Um!" remarked his chief secretary. "I guess he must have been a contortionist."—Philadelphia North American.

In the case of the Commonwealth against the Newton boys—Otto, Ira, Hughey and Niles—who were indicted for maliciously shooting and wounding Ed Smith near Golden Pond eight months ago, they were sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of two years each. At Lead Hill, in Muhlenberg county, a little son of Tom Allen was killed by his little sister. The boy was seven and the girl only five years old. While playing they found a pistol belonging to their father, and the boy snatched it at the girl several times, saying, "I am going to kill you." He then handed the sister the weapon and said, "You kill me." She pulled the trigger and the cartridge exploded, sending a thirty-eight-caliber ball into the little fellow's hip, shattering the joint. In spite of his suffering he told all about the accident, but he died shortly afterward—Madisonville Mail.

Gladders Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact that it is a remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore of all importance, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase that you have in mind a genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

MATRIMONIAL.

Mr. Wm. Murdock, of Memphis, and Miss Mallie Sims, of Owensboro, were married Wednesday.

Miss Bessie Campbell, one of Paducah's most popular society young ladies, was married Tuesday morning to M. Walter H. Virgoe, of Mexico City.

Mr. Cromwell is Chief Clerk of the State Senate and one of the most popular men in Kentucky. The bride, who has been State Librarian, is equally well known and popular.

HARRALSON-KIRKMAN.—The Todd County Times says: "It has now been finally announced that Rev. Eugene Barlow, of Lebanon, Ky., and Miss Maud Kirkman, of this city, are united in marriage. Mr. Harraison was attending the Vanderbilt Training School in this city when he first met Miss Kirkman, and a mutual affection was soon the result of their acquaintance. This affection grew stronger as time wore on, and on May 3rd, 1895, they left for Evansville, Ind., where the ceremony was performed by Rev. H. N. King, of this city. There were no parties from this city present at the marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Harraison returned immediately after the ceremony, of which nothing was known except by their intimate friends and family. The matter was kept quiet for the reason that Mr. Harraison was in school, and the young wife felt, therefore, that she would be in an embarrassing position should the facts be made known to the public. Mrs. Harraison has taught school in this county for several years, and is a young lady of beauty and culture. During the World's Fair at Chicago in '93 she had charge of the Kentucky building and did much toward making the exhibit of the State a creditable one.

Mr. Harraison is a young minister of marked ability, and was extremely popular while attending school here. He is at present studying at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, having graduated at the V. T. S. in the class of '96.

The approaching marriage of Mr. H. R. Dunaway, a son of Judge Wm. M. Dunaway of Russellville, and Miss Katherine Waggener, of Morehead, daughter of Mr. John W. Waggener, cashier of Union county bank is announced. The wedding will take place June 8. Mr. Dunaway is a traveling salesman for Ragon Bros. of Evansville. Mr. Waggener is said to be a very attractive and highly cultured young woman.
